Chesnut upgraded to fair condition

Terry Chesnut, the father of the two small girls who perished in a Feb. 15 fire on Oddville Avenue, is in fair condition at the University of Kentucky's Chandler Medical Center.

Chesnut was home with his daughters when the fire broke out.

According to Cynthiana Fire Chief Jay Sanders, the cause of the fire remains under investigation by Kentucky State Police arson investigator Curtis Combs.

Judy to serve as chair of Highway Contractors Assoc.

Cynthiana's Morgan Judy has been named chairman of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors for 2012.

Judy, who serves as vice president of the family-owned Judy Construction Co., was elected at the annual convention Feb. 11-18. Judy assumes the position that was also previously held by his father Larry, who is president of Judy Construction. Larry Judy also served numerous terms on the association's board of directors.

Growth Summit planned

Downtown business owners are encouraged to unite to save local businesses.

Local business owners Missy Lutz and Roger Slade will be hosting Growth Summit, an opportunity for local businesses to collaborate about helping one another.

"Our thinking is that we can be more successful by working together than separate," said Lutz.

Lutz said she hopes businesses will also join together to bring more events to the downtown area in an effort to liven it up.

"During events it will be our goal to encompass every business," said Lutz.

Growth Summit will be held Tuesday, March 6, at 6 p.m. The meeting will take place at 137 E. Pike Street in Rohs' New Hall.

For more information about the Growth Summit, contact Slade at 859-707-3852 or Lutz at 859-588-1803.

Little white lies and watery eyes

2012 Chamber award winners announced

Photos and story by Becky Barnes

When is telling a lie not only OK, but also endorsed?
When the little white lie, fib or fabrication is done with the intent to surprise a Chamber of Commerce award recipient, of course.

Stephanie Pierce Burden was awarded the Retail Business Person of the Year at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet. See more photos on page 19.

Burden earns Business Person of the Year

Cynthiana's youngest recipient, Stephanie Pierce Burden was named Retail Businessperson the Year.

Although she has only been owner of her Flower Depot for little more than five years, Stephanie claims, "I was raised in a flower shop."

Her parents owned and operated Judy's Flowers when Stephanie was growing up. Now she's giving her young daughters, Makenzie, 3, and Molly, 1, the same experiences she had as a child.

Stephanie said she was lured to Friday's banquet at the Extension office under the guise of being new members and needing to support the local Chamber activities.

"It was supposed to be a girls' night out," Stephanie said.

However, when her husband, Jeremy, and father, Larry Pierce, showed up, something started smelling and it was the aroma of freshly cut flowers.

Stephanie is a 2000 graduate of Harrison County High School. She went on to earn an associates degree in science from Blue Grass Technical College.

After college, she returned to Cynthiana and opened New Look Fashions. She later purchased the Flower Depot from her cousin, Cherity Christopher, and incorporated the jewelry and purses into the flower shop.

Two years ago, the business was moved to

Brown's case in federal court to be heard March 23

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

In what is turning out to be a highly contested bankruptcy case involving millions of dollars, attorneys for Kay Brown, wife of former Cynthiana mayor and businessman Jim Brown, asked the court to overrule an objection to Kay Brown hiring three law firms.

U.S. District Court trustee Samuel Crocker has objected to the hiring of three separate law firms to represent Mrs. Brown, questioning the payment of fees and where the money originated to pay attorney retainers.

Court documents filed on behalf of Mrs. Brown by one of her attorneys, Sandra Spurgeon, explained that funds to pay $190,000 attorney retainers was a loan from her brother, Roger Kirk.

In the response filed Feb. 27 by Kay Brown's attorney to objections for her to hire Spurgeon & Tinker as bankruptcy counsel and The Bolog Firm and Whiteford Taylor & Preston as special litigation counsel, she asserts that her husband's counsel is alleging that her attorneys have entered into an unauthorized fee sharing arrangement and that the proposed counsel have an interest in the estate by receipt of retainer funds.

Kay Brown, through her attorney, asserts that the objections by Jim Brown's legal representatives and that of the U.S. District Court trustee were to keep her from obtaining counsel of her choice or from having effective counsel in her bankruptcy case.

A hearing in federal bankruptcy court was previously scheduled for Feb. 15. However, according to court documents, the hearings were rescheduled to Feb. 23 when Judge Tracey N. Wise recused herself and Judge Joseph M. Scott Jr. was assigned. Then, the Feb. 23 hearing was continued to March 23 due to a family medical matter of Mrs. Brown's proposed counsel, Spurgeon.

Leading up to that hearing, where rulings will be made on two motions to dismiss the bankruptcy case filed by Crocker and Richard Wehrle, conservator for Jim Brown, the court has ordered that all discovery in the case be completed before March 16.

The judge also overruled a motion on behalf of Mrs. Brown to strike the motion to dismiss, which was filed by Mr. Brown's conservator.

The Spurgeon motion to strike the conservator's motion to dismiss the bankruptcy case, contends that the motion to dismiss was partially based on information supplied to him from

Better ISO rating equals lower premium

By BEN HYATT, News Writer

The Harrison County Fire District is encouraging all property owners to consult their insurance providers about lower premiums due to better ISO rating in the county.

According to Charles Allen Carson, assistant chief of the Harrison and Cynthiana Fire Departments, the Harrison County ISO rating has improved from a level 9 to a level 8.

Since the forming of the Harrison County Fire District in 2005, fire personnel have worked with taxpayer's money to provide a safer community in the form of modernizing the county's fire response.

Updates in equipment and the construction of new county fire stations boosted the results of an ISO audit.

"ISO stands for Insurance Service Office, and basically we are evaluated based on several statistics which then determines our rating," said Carson. "The better the rating, the lower insurance is for property owners in the county."

Carson explained the rating is based on three percentages which are 10 percent alarm, 50 percent fire department and 40 percent water supply, to conclude an ISO rating. The scale is based 1-10, 1 being the best rating.

"Until now, Harrison County has had a rating of 9 out of 10," said Carson. "Since our last audit, we have now improved to a rating of 8."

A number of factors such as number of dispatch employees working each shift, water pressure and type of equipment available for use are all factored into the equation to determining a county's ISO rating.

Carson said several apparatus equipment pieces have been court proceedings that were not open to the public and alleged that Mrs. Brown was seeking to re-litigate that Harrison District Court case in bankruptcy court.

Brown

Wehrle, who was appointed in that district court proceeding to oversee Mr. Brown's affairs, and Paul Brown, appointed guardian for his brother, filed their motion to have Kay Brown's bankruptcy case dismissed on Feb. 9.

The 250-page court document includes multiple exhibits, including the prenuptial agreement signed by the Browns prior to their Feb. 2, 2008, marriage.

A disclosure of their assets was incorporated into the prenuptial agreement. Jim Brown's assets in 2008 amounted to in excess of $114 million and noted that he earned over $80,000 monthly from rent on his commercial properties. Kay Brown's assets were listed as zero cash, a net worth of $236,000 and a monthly income of $3,000 most of which was derived from rent on a commercial building in Paintsville.

Crocker also alleges in his motion to dismiss that Mrs. Brown had a durable power of attorney filed, putting herself in that position following Jim's severe stroke on Dec. 23, 2008, less than 10 months following their wedding.

However, in that power of attorney, allegedly signed by Jim but now under question, it stipulates that none of his estate would be given away.

Prior to his marriage to Kay, Jim and his first wife, Martha, had an estate plan prepared by Wehrle that established the Community Trust and Investment Co. About a year later, Mr. Brown executed a new estate plan, again prepared by Wehrle, that included a power of attorney naming the Community Trust as his attorney. Brown's will also named Community Trust as his executor and stipulated that his estate would go to the James A. Brown 2007 Revocable Trust.

The Trust also noted that in the event that Mr. Brown is unable to serve as trustee, Community Trust would be appointed his successor trustee.

According to background information in the motion, Wehrle said he met with Brown following his stroke to complete the probate of Martha's estate. He said there was never a mention of changes to the estate plan.

However, he said he was contacted by Kay Brown in 2009 advising that Mr. Brown had signed a new will, which had been prepared by her cousin in Paintsville, John Kirk, and which Wehrle described as being a drastic change from the previous will.

The new will showed a lack of tax planning, Wehrle stated, and left all of his estate to Kay Brown or to her two children if she should die before Jim.

However, a few months later, Wehrle said he met with Jim, who allegedly told Wehrle that Kay was trying to sell Grand Haven Nursing Home against his wishes and he contended that he never signed a power of attorney or a new will.

In turn, Wehrle filed a petition in Harrison District Court to the appointment of an emergency conservator to handle Mr. Brown's financial affairs and to halt the sale of Grand Haven.

At a March 8, 2010, hearing, Special Judge William Probus entered a status quo order, meaning that Mr. Brown's nursing home could not be sold.

A disability trial was set for May 13, 2010, to determine Mr. Brown's competency. At that hearing it was ordered that Mr. Brown's properties and assets could not be transferred or disposed of. However, the order did allow for reasonable and customary living expenses for Mrs. Brown.

A Harrison County jury ruled that Jim Brown was totally disabled and appointed a temporary limited guardian, revoked Kay Brown's power of attorney and held in place the status quo order until the permanent guardian could be appointed.

During the disability trial, which was held in closed court and for which the records remain closed but a portion of which are mentioned in the bankruptcy case filings, Mr. Brown testified that he owned Farmers National Bank in Paris.

Brown's alleged surprise at being told he had deeded the property to his wife and other suspected financial transactions, the court directed the temporary limited guardian to check into Mr. Brown's affairs.

According to records on file at the U.S. District Court, at the hearing to determine appointments for guardian and conservator, information and testimony was revealed accusing Kay Brown of violation of the status quo order previously signed by the judge.

Included in the alleged violations was not only the transfer of the Paris bank, but also 22 other properties, valued at an estimated $6.2 million and the transfer of $5 million in certificates of deposit. There were also other purchases and payments to her children.

The deeds were never recorded due to incomplete information. However, testimony by Nyoka Peak and Kim Day, who were to have witnessed the property transfers, alleges that they did not see Kay Brown sign any of the deeds and they did not see Jim Brown sign the deeds dated Nov. 3, 2009.

Peak said the deeds she did witness Jim Brown sign, he was never told he was signing deeds only that he was signing papers "so if anything went wrong Mrs. Brown could take care of things."

Day told the court that all that was showing was the signature pages.

Peak was also alleged to have witnessed the new will along with Tracy McIntosh. However, Peak testified that she had not witnessed Jim Brown sign the will and that he was not ever present when Kay Brown brought the will to them already signed and notarized.

Other winners

The coveted Citizen of the Year was awarded to Charles Feix, who has served on numerous boards, many as chairman.

The Service Businessman of the Year was Donald Northcutt, owner of Cynthiana Used Furniture and Moving Service.

Twenty-nine-year veteran teacher Jennifer Grinstead Muntz was shocked at the announcement of Educator of the Year. Grinstead was led to believe that colleague Jamie Kinsey was getting the award. In fact, had a cake baked to honor her after the banquet.

While Westside Elementary staff were celebrating Muntz' award, Betty Zumwalt was about to find out she was being honored as the Volunteer of Year.

Troy Bradford knew from a young age that he wanted to be a farmer. As it turns out, he does well enough to be named Farmer of the Year.

Dr. Brett Hines, who opened Cynthiana Vision in 1996, was recognized as the Health Care Provider of the Year. Dr. Hines was the second recipient of this award which started last year.

Watch for features on the remaining recipients in the coming weeks.

added or upgraded in an effort to push for a better ISO rating in Harrison County.

"We currently have 22 pieces of apparatus equipment, eight stations and 52 firefighters," said Carson.

"All county residents are covered within a five mile radius, 'as the crow flies.'"

Carson also mentioned the possibility of city firefighters responding to the "first alarm" of county fires in the future.

"It is another thing that could help our ISO rating," said Carson. "We are looking at a mutual aid agreement with the city, for them to respond on the first alarm instead of on an as-needed basis and likewise for us to them."

Currently the city of Berry and Cynthiana both have an ISO rating of 5.

"People who live close to a fire station should have lower insurance however, not all insurance companies recognize ISO ratings," said Carson.

"I am not telling anyone to drop their insurance for another, but, looking into a lower premium could help save a property owner some money."

Carson estimated the amount of money saved in premiums could range from $200 and up.

"It is hard times and everyone needs to know about the opportunity to save," said Carson.

For more information about Harrison County ISO ratings contact the Fire Protection District at 234-9840. The office is located at 201 S Main Street.

Accelerating fuel costs are spring disappointment

Nothing gives spring's arrival away better than the ever-growing thorn in all drivers' sides.

When I think of spring, I generally think of things that make me happy.

For example, with spring comes warmer weather, outside events, volleyball, warmer weather, getting a tan, volleyball and the always enjoyed... warmer weather.

In a small rural community like ours, the farms tend to shine and the scenery, for the most part, looks similar to pictures you might see in a magazine.

However, with spring also comes a list of things that tend to get under my skin.

The Kentucky Crud, tornadoes, insect bites and not being able to go to sleep at night due to your nostrils being clogged.

But among all of the negative things that come with spring, one stands out and continues to be that proverbial thorn for all drivers... gas prices.

Recently gas prices in Harrison County have jumped, in a matter of hours, as much as 30 cents per gallon.

Now I am sure I don't have to say this, but I will anyway, something about a 30-cent jump in a matter of hours does not seem right to me.

No matter how much a house-

I have heard stories of many veteran drivers talking about the good ole days when $10 would nearly fill an American made V8 engine up and run them for almost two weeks... one week if there was a race on Devil's Backbone that night.

When I started driving, gas was around $1.35 per gallon.

My dad would put $10 on the counter every Monday morning for gas money as an agreement that I would pick my sister up from school.

On the way to school I would stop at Northfield Oil and hand over the $10.

On an average, the money would put the gas gauge just above 3/4 of a tank full in the old, yet styled-up Ford Ranger.

However, as I started college and upgraded to a gas efficient car, the money needed to fill up increased in no time.

I went from paying $1.35 for a gallon of gas to -- at one point -- paying as much as $4 per gallon.

For a guy with very little money to spare and tons of places I thought I needed to go, gas money began to turn into being hold might generate in income, 30 cents for every gallon of gas bought can really add up in no time, especially when gas was high to begin with.

more precious than gold.

When gas took a 30-cent jump last week, the horror of warmer weather quickly overran the positive side to spring.

Why a 30-cent jump?

I received a phone call from one of the citizens of Harrison County wanting me to find out the reason for the ridiculous jump in fuel.

I called our local officials and was informed of bad news. The bad news was news that I had heard already.

Apparently Harrison County is a smaller business area for the selling gas or "liquid gold," as I like to call it.

During the conversation I threw out the phrase "price gouging," but was told that the attorney general does not consider gas prices as being "gouged" unless there is a limited supply during an emergency time.

I immediately thought that the attorney general must be affiliated with the federal government... not stepping in to help the middle man just doing what it can to help the rich become richer.

When does a county become a "small area of business" when they have six gas stations within the city limits?

Why is it that when one gas station increases its prices, the rest follow shortly behind it?

At times I tend to wonder if all the gas station owners/managers meet at McDonalds in the morning and roll dice to see who will set the gas prices for the day.

I try my very best to keep money inside Harrison County, but when I see cheaper gas as I am driving back from an outing, I have no problem in pulling over to cap off the tank.

Gas station owners should be more cautious when setting prices.

So what if they don't make as much per gallon, at least they will have more Harrison County drivers buying their fuel.

During our present situation with the economy, people will go where they can get the best deal.

It makes me sad to know that many drive to neighboring counties to fill their tanks up and while they are there they spend money on other things as well.

I encourage everyone who is tired of paying too much for gas to do their part in bringing prices back down.

We Americans have forgotten what we are capable of doing when we unite.

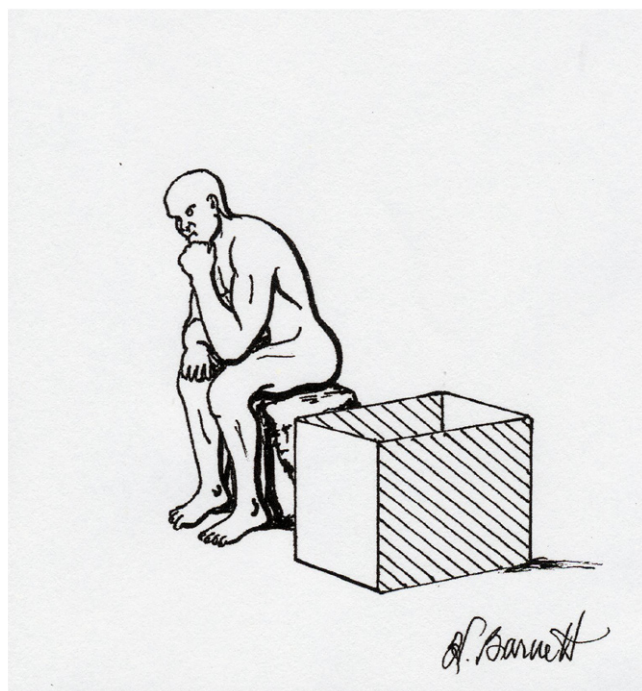

Americans in the past have changed our country just by standing beside each other for what is right.

I encourage everyone to write letters to their elected officials and of course to the editor.

In time I know it is possible to right this wrong.

GERMANY. Farmer just outside of Hanau, Germany in 1951.

House says yes to opening court for abused, neglected children cases

This past week, the Kentucky House of Representatives spent much of its time focusing on two important groups: Our children and our farmers.

On Wednesday, for example, the full chamber voted to make viewing child pornography a crime, a move that would close a loophole that has made it tougher to prosecute pedophiles who don't actually possess the images they view on the internet but don't keep.

If this becomes law, state and local law enforcement would have much more authority to prosecute this crime. At the same time, there would be provisions to protect those who inadvertently see such material.

On Friday, the House approved a bill that would begin opening court proceedings in those cases involving children who have been abused or neglected. This is designed to increase accountability, to ensure that everything is being done to keep them safe.

House Bill 239 would begin that process by setting up pilot programs in several family courts across the state. The judges would have more discretion to open proceedings while ensuring proper privacy concerns are met.

The need for this has become especially apparent in recent months in the wake of several high-profile deaths of abused children.

State Rep.

In the House Education Committee, a Senate bill that has drawn wide support took a step closer to becoming law last week. Under that one, special needs students would receive an alternative high school diploma rather than the certificate they now get if they complete their modified curriculum.

As for farming, there were several resolutions approved this week in the Kentucky House that I either sponsored or co-sponsored. One would create a task force to see how we can better promote agricultural activities in our urban areas and increase access there to fresh farm products. Another recognized last week as Food Checkout Week, which highlights the fact that our country spends less of our income on food than other countries.

There were also two resolutions approved this past week in the House encouraging federal officials to act on farming issues. One asks that tobacco and tobacco products be included in the proposed trade agreement now being considered with several Pacific Rim countries.

The other asks the federal government to make its guest-worker program (known as H-2A) more efficient and user friendly so that it is less burdensome for farmers to legally hire workers they need.

Another bill I filed this year made it through the House unanimously on Friday. This one would lay the groundwork to create a permanent memorial for those brave Kentucky soldiers who have died fighting for freedom in Iraq and Afghanistan, a total that now stands at 110.

This memorial, whose location would be determined later this year, would include those who have served during the past decade in those countries as well as Iraq in the early 1990s as part of Operation Desert Storm.

On Thursday, the House approved a bill that could provide a major boost to our automotive companies.

It would expand the tax incentives that were offered to Ford in 2007 in Louisville to Toyota's and GM's assembly plants as well as large auto parts suppliers, as long as they meet the guidelines. It requires a sizeable investment to qualify, but this plan helped Ford spend more than a billion dollars on its facilities and hire up to 3,000 people.

With about five weeks left in the legislative session, time is beginning to draw short. The House will soon vote on its proposal for the state budget, and both the House and Senate will finalize action on a number of other issues by the end of March.

I want to thank those who have contacted me this legislative session to let me know their thoughts or concerns. If you would like to take part, my address is Room 332B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601.

You can also leave a message for me or for any legislator at 800-372-7181. For those with a hearing impairment, the number is 800-896-0305.

If you have children who would be interested in paging during the legislative session, please use the information above to let me know. I have been fortunate to have several students already help me this year. It's a wonderful educational experience for those who want to see how the legislative process works.

Commissioner tells how reps selected for new rec board

By BECKY BARNES, Editor
Discussion in the Cynthiana City Commissioners' room became heated Tuesday when Commissioner Billy Grayson called for an appointment of city representatives for the newly formed Parks and Recreation steering committee.
Grayson announced that the Harrison County Fiscal Court was appointing magistrates Missy Lutz and Frank Henson to serve along with the Recreation Department chairman Robbie VanHook. Added to those three would be the two city representatives.
Chris Turley questioned how the fifth member (VanHook) was chosen.

Grayson noted that by virtue of VanHook being the current Recreation Department's chairman he seemed the logical choice.
Brian Williams addressed the commission regarding staffing a new Parks and Recreation.
Williams, who was part of the Phase I planning for Parks and Recreation, asked why they would hire a new recreation director when there was already one in place.
Williams said it has previously been said that a new recreation director will be hired once the new board is established.
"I resent the implication," said Commissioner Jack Keith.
Grayson explained how establishing a Parks and Recreation Department versus a Recreation Department evolved.
"We have not met the needs of the community," Grayson said, adding that he went to Flat Run Veterans' Park and found a commode stopped up. Two days later, the same commode was still out of order and one in another restroom was clogged with mud and straw. Two days later, one was repaired but the other was in the same condition.
Grayson said it became a matter of whose responsibility it was to ensure the restrooms were maintained.
Mayor Steve Moses said the Recreation Department maintains 12 to 15 acres of mutually owned parks between the city and county. Another 130 acres are the responsibility of the city and/or the county.

Grayson said he was fed up with the negative comments.
"I think the people of this town should be excited about what's going on," Grayson said. He added that regarding the hiring a new recreation director, it would fall upon the new board to see that a director was in place.
Grayson then called on Rick Chasteen, who is the director of the Recreation Department, to tell the group of people in the commission audience what he had been told by Grayson on three previous occasions.
Chasteen said Grayson told him that he had done an adequate job.
"I said if I was going to choose a director I don't know of anyone in this town more qualified than Rick Chasteen," Grayson said.
He reiterated that it would be the new Parks and Recreation board's responsibility to staff its own department, but that didn't mean the current staff would not be the new board's choice.
At the conclusion of the lengthy discussion, the city voted unanimously to appoint Grayson and Keith to serve on the committee.
In other business, the commission:
•Accepted a bid from Switzer Plumbing for work in City Hall.
•Agreed to advertise for an auctioneer to sell the city's surplus property on Cook Pike.
•Agreed to declare city-owned property on Lincoln Avenue as surplus for the purpose of offering it for sale.
•Hired Commissioner Gary Brunker commend all of the first responders who were involved in the tragic fire on Oddville Avenue that claimed the life of two small children.
•Hired three part-time telecommunicators for 911 dispatch: Morgan A. Cain, Ashley A. Gray and Candy E. Slone.
•Agreed to have a joint meeting with the fiscal court to discuss progress with the Harrison County Active Living endeavor.
•Met in executive session for pending litigation and disciplinary action for a specific employee.
•Hired Greg Herrington as a water treatment plant operator/trainee.

BIKE WASH FUNDRAISER. Haydon, 8, right, and Raymee Edwards, 6, students at Eastside Elementary School, held a $1 bike wash on Friday, Feb. 17 at the corner of Bridge Street and Elmarch Avenue to help the Chesnut family, who lost two children and their home in a fire on Feb. 15. Although no one needed a bike wash, several did stop and donate money. The two collected $216 and was matched by their great-grandparents Charlie and Emma Garrison. "I didn't know them, but I just wanted to help," said Haydon. Haydon and Raymee also plan to go through their personal items to donate. "We had people knock on the door Saturday morning to donate after seeing the sign," said Emmalee Wiglesworth, mother of Haydon and Raymee. The money collected will be taken to Harrison Deposit Bank. They are also the children of Jarrod Edwards.

County precincts affected by redistricting

By BEN HYATT, News Writer
The Harrison County Fiscal Court looks to amend an ordinance which previously was set to redistrict magistrate lines.
According to County Clerk Linda Furnish, House Bill 302 was signed by Gov. Steve Beshear on Feb. 10, which redefines the boundaries for congressional districts in Kentucky.
Those new boundary lines have affected Harrison County's magisterial districts, which were re-drawn in 2011.
Furnish informed the court that an amendment would be needed to eliminate the need for additional precincts.

After re-apportioning the county districts following a mandated consensus, each precinct was balanced in conjunction to a balanced number of voters in each district.
County Judge-Executive Alex Barnett said once the amendment is complete, only three new precincts will be added instead of an additional three caused by House Bill 302.
"Each new precinct costs money," said Barnett. "With only adding three, we will eliminate the need to purchase new voting equipment for elections."
Barnett said any voter who will be affected by the redistricting will be contacted shortly.

The fiscal court also awarded a winning bid for the 86-acre county farm during its meeting. A total of 11 bids were submitted for the one-year lease. The winning bid was awarded to Nathan Courtney for an average of $232.55 per acre.
Members of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet were present to submit suggestions for re-surfacing of county roads.
The members submitted a plan to re-surface portions of KY 356 and KY 1032.

The fiscal court agreed upon the recommendations and look for re-surfacing to start sometime this spring.
Finally, a representative from the Senior Citizen Center informed the court of money issues.
According to the representation, structure problems and past poor management has begun to "eat" into the funding for the center.
The fiscal court agreed to table the situation in order to look into bills that the county would be able to help pay in order to keep the center operating.

Moore to teach local dance-fitness classes

Crystal Moore, a newly certified Jazzercise instructor, earned the right to teach Jazzercise by completing a three-day workshop and performing a letter-perfect audition. Becoming a Jazzercise instructor requires dedication and training. Moore recently participated in a workshop in West Chester, Ohio, sponsored by the Franchise Programs and Services Department of Jazzercise, Inc. She was required to learn 10 Jazzercise routines for her audition; pass a written exam on basic anatomy, exercise physiology and nutrition; learn Jazzercise business practices; and become certified to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). Jazzercise combines exercise with jazz dance-based choreography and popular music. Each 60-minute high-energy class includes a warm up, aerobic segment, muscle toning and flexibility exercises and a cool-down. Fresh choreography is continually introduced into the program as Jazzercise founder Judi Sheppard Missett creates new routines every 10 weeks. The non-competitive atmosphere makes it easy for people of all fitness levels to participate. Instructors demonstrate both challenging movements and low-impact variations. Jazzercise classes are designed to be fun. The workout program, which offers a fusion of jazz dance, resistance training, Pilates, yoga, and kickboxing movements, has positively affected millions of people worldwide. Benefits include increased cardiovascular endurance, strength, and flexibility, as well as an overall "feel good" factor. Cynthiana Jazzercise offers eight classes a week with both morning and evening hours. For information on Jazzercise contact Jennifer Terhune, owner, at 859-235-9765. For worldwide class information, go to jazzercise.com or call (800)FIT-IS-IT.

Church

Shut my mouth - please!

If I were God, I would've made people with delay devices on their mouths or a filter of some kind.

For example, when your brain wants to say, "Poodles aren't real dogs," before it comes out of your mouth the delay device would kick in and send you a message: "Really? Is that really what you want to say in front of this group of people who may or may not include poodle owners?"

True story. I said that once in front of a group of women at a local church (which means I run into these women at the grocery store) and a woman in the front row raised her hand and said, "I have a poodle."

Crickets chirped in the silence for about five long seconds — and then she laughed. She didn't really have a poodle.

My immediate thought: Good. Now I don't have to move to Nebraska.

See, if we had filters, whenever someone would say, "Poodles aren't real dogs" it would come out, "Poodles are the greatest dogs God ever made."

But we don't have auto-filters, and I have a real problem with my mouth sometimes.

Recently, I said something in public that probably offended a few people who heard me and I didn't realize it until it was too late. I felt terrible, but it was a situation where I couldn't amend my words because it would've drawn attention to the people whom I may have offended and would've made things worse.

So, I went home and beat myself up thinking about all the unhelpful or hurtful things I've said in the past and that I'll surely say in the future and decided to join a convent where no one is allowed to speak at all, except I'd probably talk in my sleep and offend some nun who probably owns a poodle.

I told God (silently since I pretty much determined that my tongue is a lethal weapon) that I was really, really, really sorry and please don't fry me on the spot. If God rolls his eyes, I'm sure he did at that point as he reminded me of one of my favorite scriptures: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9).

I'm not normally this neurotic, but something else was bothering me. In a radio interview featuring Toni Birdsong, the author of the blog and book, "Sticky Jesus," about Christians sharing their faith online, she talked about "reckless" words and quoted Jesus who said, "On judgment day, people will have to account for every careless word they have spoken. By your words you will be found guilty or not guilty (Matthew 12: 36-37)."

She echoed what I'd heard before. A church I went to years ago also taught that God would one day play back a movie of our lives and as we stand ashamed in front of him and the angels and everyone else, we would have to explain our thoughts, words and deeds and God would condemn or commend us on the spot.

I well remember being afraid to speak or even think, feeling condemned even before I opened my mouth, certain that God kept careful score.

Somehow, I missed what Jesus had really said — and to whom he was speaking. He was addressing the self-righteous religious leaders, whom he called a "brood of vipers" among other things. He was accusing them of all sorts of evil, especially their words.

But he wasn't addressing his followers. He wasn't talking to the ones who put their faith in him, who believed in him. He wasn't talking to us, we who call ourselves Christians.

After all, "Therefore there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus" (Romans 8:1). The score has already been settled, including our speech. We are not condemned and never will be!

However, that doesn't mean we can speak recklessly. Our tongues can be lethal and still need to be bridled. We still need a filter. Thankfully, God has given us one. We have his Spirit who whispers in our ears, "Not those words. Not that tone. Not here, not now."

It's up to us to listen — and heed the whippers.

Sometimes I hear too late, but many times I'm stopped in time. I hope I'm getting better at it.

For those I've ever offended, I really am sorry. And I don't have anything against poodles. However, I do have my doubts about Yorkies.

Project Linus brings a sense of security and warmth to hospitalized children

North Central Kentucky Chapter has donated more than 2,200 blankets

With every stitch, Mary Ann Upton remembers. Five years ago, she watched her newborn grandson fight for his life. He was born with a heart defect that lead to open heart surgery when he was only three days old. In the midst of all the worry and pain, the local chapter of Project Linus brought the baby a blanket.

"It's put up now," said the grandmother of five. "One day, maybe he'll take it out and tell the story to his children. It really meant a lot. Hospitals can be so cold and impersonal. What Project Linus did was so good."

That grandbaby is now a normal, energetic five-year-old. And Upton repays the kindness of the blanket by volunteering with the North Central Kentucky Chapter of Project Linus. She was among the more than 20 people participating with the group on National Project Linus Make-A-Blanket Day, which is held each year on the third Saturday in February.

While Upton machine quilted blankets, others cut and pieced materials. Still others worked on no-sew fleece blankets. Others provided support through monetary, fabric or other donations. By the end of the day, more than 50 blankets had been completed.

"We do this because we want to make a difference in these kids' lives," said Upton, who has been a member of the local Project Linus chapter since it was founded in 2009. "Something so small can mean so much to them."

A national organization based in Bloomington, Illinois, Project Linus draws on the inspiration of the Charles Schulz character Linus, who is comforted through his trials by his blanket. The group's mission is to provide love, a sense of security, warmth and comfort to children who are seriously ill or traumatized through the gift of a new, handmade blanket, quilt or afghan.

The North Central Kentucky Chapter of Project Linus has about 60 regularly active volunteers, including members from County Extension Homemakers, Girl Scouts and church groups in Scott, Harrison, Pendleton, Nicholas, Bourbon and Robertson counties. Once made by the chapter volunteers, the blankets are distributed through hospitals, health departments, judicial agencies and funeral homes, among others. To date, the chapter has donated more than 2,200 blankets. It is among the nearly 400 chapters of Project Linus across the United State that have provided more than 4 million blankets.

Project Linus volunteers need not be expert quilters, or even quilters at all. Donations of time, fabric, yarn, gift cards or money are greatly appreciated.

"People take part in Project Linus because they enjoy this craft, because they love children," said chapter coordinator Janet Walter. "It gives them an outlet for that."

"There is so much need out there," Upton said. "If I can just give them a blanket, it could help them feel better. This is something I can do for them, and that keeps me going."

To find out more about the North Central Kentucky Chapter of Project Linus, contact Walter at (502) 863-9726 or craft_nurse@bell-south.net. Donations of new, handmade blankets or materials also can be dropped at Georgetown's First United Methodist Church, the Scott County Public Library, the Kentucky Doll and Toy Museum in Carlisle or the Harrison County Sheriff's Office.

DINO DIG. The Cynthiana-Harrison County Public Library offered a program at the library on Feb. 23. Youth Services Librarian Kinzie Gaunce, read Little Grunt and the Big Egg: a Prehistoric Fairy Tale by Tomie DePaola. After the story, children participated in a dinosaur dig, where they were given a bump cap, donated by Bullard, to wear while digging in sandboxes for dinosaur skeletons and seashells. The program ended with a Dinosaur Egg Hunt that was conducted in the main library and the eggs were cracked open to reveal tiny dinosaurs back in the Children's Library. All 24 children that attended got to take home their bump cap, a complete dino skeleton and a dinosaur egg and it's contents.

Since Bean's death, his family has continued to sponsor the scholarship.

"Dr. Bean was a true treasure and extremely dedicated to providing quality education for all students," said Debbie Kelly, BCTC professor of Dental Hygiene. "Kacey is a very talented student and is someone that the scholarship committee felt Dr. Bean would have enjoyed teaching."

"I am honored to be selected as the 2011 recipient of the L.R. Bean Dental Radiology award," said Muntz. "The Dental Hygiene program at BCTC has prepared me for my new career as a successful clinician."

Group Formed to Help Children Reach Their Full Potential

Community Early Childhood Council Brings Many Organizations Together

The first few years of a child's life play a critical role in its overall success or failure as an adult. Recently a new group was created to help the children of Harrison County grow and develop to their full potential.

The group is called the "Harrison County Community Early Childhood Council" (CECC) and its purpose is to bring organizations together so that they can serve the area's children more efficiently and effectively.

"Our area has many groups that are dedicated to helping our county's youngest citizens. Unfortunately, many of those groups did not have a forum for dealing with the various issues important to a child's success," said Stephanie Adamkin, chairperson of the Early Childhood Council. "Hopefully, the Early Childhood Council will give us a forum to promote public awareness about the importance of a child's formative years."

According to Adamkin, the ECC plans to meet monthly at the Harrison County Health Department. The health department is located at 302 Oddville Road in Cynthiana. The next meeting will be held on Friday, March 9th at 12:30 p.m.

"We are encouraging all organizations that work with young children, age birth to 5, to come and join us at our next meeting. By working together, we believe that we can improve the lives of our area's children."

Harrison County Sheriff's audit

State Auditor Adam Edelen releases the audit of the sheriff's settlement - 2010 taxes for Harrison County Sheriff Bruce Hampton. State law requires the auditor to annually audit the accounts of each county sheriff. In compliance with this law, the auditor issues two sheriff's reports each year: one reporting on the audit of the sheriff's tax account and the other reporting on the audit of the fee account used to operate the office.

The auditor noted no instances of noncompliance. The auditor also noted no matters involving internal control over financial reporting and its operation that were considered to be material weaknesses.

The sheriff's responsibilities include collecting property taxes, providing law enforcement and performing services for the county fiscal court and courts of justice. The sheriff's office is funded through statutory commissions and fees collected in conjunction with these duties.

This report, in its entirety, can be accessed at www.auditor.ky.gov.

Lady Bears slip by Fillies in region barnburner

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The two teams had met this season one other time and Bracken County won by a 69-28 score on the Fillies' home floor. It was hard to believe the same two teams were facing each other on Tuesday night as Harrison County battled tooth and nail before falling 53-48 to the Lady Bears.

Harrison County took an early lead with baskets by senior Emalee Little and freshman Chelsea Ingram but Bracken County scored two three pointers to take the lead 6-5 with under four minutes remaining in the opening period.

Sophomore Mallory Bell and eighth grader Bailey Cummins hit from beyond the arc to pace their team in the early going.

A Jordan Doram basket gave the Fillies the lead at 7-6 but the Harrison County squad went cold from the field, and Bracken County scored seven unanswered points before the Fillies could score again taking a 15-9 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Bracken County took what was to be the biggest lead in the game midway through the second period when they pushed out to a 23-11 advantage. However, Ingram and Little each connected for threes and the Fillies cut the margin to seven by halftime at 26-19.

In the second stanza, the Fillies only attempted eight shots making four of them as turnovers haunted the Harrison County girls in this period. They committed seven of their game total 21 in the second quarter.

After Bracken County scored the first basket of the second half to take an 11 point lead, the Fillies scored eight straight to cut the lead to only one with almost three minutes still to be played in the third.

The Fillies regained the lead with one and one half minutes to play in the period and trailed by one point going into the final period. Harrison County cut down on its miscues and was able to get the ball to Doram, who scored eight of her game-high 26 points in this quarter.

Harrison County took the lead to start the fourth period on a Doram basket and tied it again with about six minutes to play at 36.

They kept battling and fighting and would once again cut the lead to one point with just a few minutes left, but could not sustain a lead losing by the five-point margin.

"I was happy our fans got to see a game where we laid it all on the line like we did tonight," said Coach Kim Furnish. "We struggled some against the press, but we kept fighting until the end."

Furnish was pleased with the effort of the seniors who played their last game Tuesday night.

"This is hard for us all," she noted. "I have gotten close to these senior girls and they have worked hard for the whole year. They have left a lot behind for the younger girls to build on."

When asked about sophomore Jordan Doram's 26-point, 20-rebound performance, Furnish was quick to say, "She is a really good player and she will only get better after working hard this summer."

Doram was the only Fillie player in double figures for the night. Little and Ingram each scored seven points while senior Mariah Nichols was held to four points and fellow senior Kelsey Cummins managed just two.

Eighth grader Cummins led the Lady Bears with 18 while sophomores Bell and Jordan Wills had 12 and 13 points. Center Cassidy Jefferson, also a sophomore, was held scoreless by foul trouble and Doram's defense but she did grab 11 rebounds to lead Bracken County.

Harrison County closes Coach Furnish's first season with a misleading 10-22 record while Bracken County advances to Wednesday night's semifinal against Montgomery County with an 18-10 record. Montgomery County defeated Bishop Brossart 51-38 in the opener on Tuesday.

MIKE'S MINUTE

Some things I don't understand

I'm 63 years old, traveled to every state but three or four if you count Alaska, been to four foreign countries and have been married 40 years in July. Yet, events happen and things are said every day that continue to amaze me. Let me give you some examples.

NBA basketball's all star weekend and what attraction that has to a seemingly large group of Americans baffles me.

TNT gave hours on Saturday night to a three-point shooting contest, a skills contest of sorts where players dribbled and passed the ball like at a tryout, and of course, the forever ballyhooed slam dunk contest.

I understand why my 9-year-old grandson, Ian, is totally enthralled by the dunking and the three-point shooting because after all he is 9. I'm not happy about it mind you but I understand.

I am continually asking him how many points a dunk scores versus a regular lay up but haven't gotten through to him yet.

While I understand Ian's attraction it is beyond me why adults pay huge dollars to get in to see this and why the people on the floor, players, announcers and spectators act like it is such a big deal that a 6-foot-9 man can dunk the ball. Shouldn't everyone who is that tall be able to dunk?

We all know surely that at the

Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

huge sum of money they are being paid they ought to be able to make the ball on the way up and then dunk it.

That would be spectacular.

The three-point shooting is another skills test that is over rated in my book. No one is guarding them and they are basketball players being paid to make baskets. That is their job.

If a worker at 3M only gets his job done correctly 50 percent of the time, he wouldn't be there long, much less be idolized and cheered for doing so.

In fact, on a personal note, people complain about what I write and/or say on the radio when they misinterpret and take out of context whatever it is that makes them unhappy.

Yet, these same people cheer a player who is right or scores half of the time.

But back to the subject, I guess I just don't see what the big deal is about someone doing what they are supposed to do.

I've had several comments about a couple of my latest articles, most were complimentary and a few not so much.

The article about my trip to Dallas with Brent Hampton seemed to be of great interest more because of the travel than what we did when we were there.

But all comments were positive and it seemed people were interested in the plight of a basketball official.

Also, my article about the seeding or not seeding of the district tournament also brought about several remarks. Some were not so positive, which is fine since the last I looked we were still in a free country which gives all of us a right to express ourselves as we choose as long as it doesn't infringe on others right to do the same.

Many were positive with the majority saying that it should be the same throughout the state, either draw all or seed all.

I am always glad when someone comments on my writing. It tells me that I am being read and means we are selling papers. We won't always agree, but let's hope we always have the right to write and say what we think without fear of repercussion.

Fillies lose district final to Deming

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

"We were not ready to play at all," bemoaned first year assistant coach Chris Reffett. "Our shots didn't fall, but we were simply not ready mentally to play."

This comment summed up the lackluster performance of the Harrison County Fillies in the finals of the 38th District Thursday at Nicholas County.

The Deming Lady Devils, after trailing early by a 9-7 margin, scored 11 unanswered points in the next six minutes and went on to defeat the Fillies, 49-47. A last second three pointer by senior Mariah Nichols cut the lead to two, but Deming simply held the ball out of bounds as the clock expired.

Cold shooting was the most apparent culprit for the night as the best quarter the Fillies had from the floor was the last one, which they shot only 30 percent.

At halftime where they trailed by 23-18, the Fillies were a whopping 15 percent from the field as they connected on five of 33 tries. Still, they only trailed by the five-point margin largely due to Deming's equally poor shooting performance.

The Lady Devils were only seven of 29 for the first half yet were still in the lead. Harrison County trailed by as many as nine points in the opening half and pulled to within five at the end.

The cold shooting was compounded by a questionable effort as Harrison County seemed to not be totally focused on the job at hand.

The third quarter saw Deming push the lead back to as many as eight on three separate occasions before the Fillies rallied to end the third stanza with a six-point deficit.

A three pointer by freshman Chelsea Ingram and a field goal by sophomore Jordan Doram cut the Deming lead to one with only 38 seconds gone in the last quarter.

The Lady Devils pushed the lead back to three but with five and one half minutes to play, the Fillies tied the score at 40 apiece on a Doram basket.

The score was tied again at 42 but Deming scored the next five points to take the lead and held on for the two-point victory.

Ingram led the Fillies in scoring with 16 points followed by Nichols who had 13 to go along with her game-high 12 rebounds.

Doram and senior guard Kelsey Cummins each added eight points and Doram grabbed 11 rebounds.

Junior Krista Smithers had a wonderful game with 19 points and nine boards, many that came on the offensive end. Freshman point guard Lacey Mitchell added 12 points as she penetrated the porous Harrison County defense on this evening.

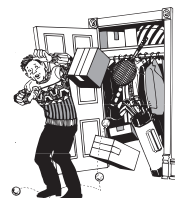

The elder Mitchell sister, senior Jessica, had nine points and led the team with 11 rebounds. Deming out-rebounded Harrison County by one, 36-35, and turned the ball over two fewer times, 13 to 15.

The Lady Devils finished with 18 of 58 for 33 percent while the Fillies scorched the nets for 15 of 68 for 22 percent.

Deming advances to the 10th Region Tournament for a Monday night match up with 8-22 Mason County. The Lady Devils are 9-19 going into Monday's game.

Harrison County will carry a 10-21 record into its Tuesday night battle with the champion of the 39th District, the Bracken County Lady Polar Bears (17-10).

Tobacco meeting planned for March 8

By GARY CARTER, Co. EXT. AGENT

The Harrison County Extension Office is planning a tobacco production meeting which will be held at the Harrison County 4-H Center on Wednesday, March 8. The meeting will begin at noon.

Even though the number of producers have diminished over the last few years the acreage and poundage has leveled off or may be increasing a small amount. This meeting is to help those producers find ways to be more efficient while finding ways to improve the quality of their product.

Dr. Kenneth Seebold, Extension

Plant Pathologist, will be on hand to discuss diseases which have an effect on our crop. We will also look at production and cultural practices which may help in saving money in our production.

Lunch will be served so we ask that you call our office by March 7 at 234-5510 if you plan to attend.

Planting time almost here

Start some indoors while you wait

I am plotting and planning and placing orders for onion sets and seed potatoes and summer crops that will be directly seeded in the garden once the temperatures really warm.

I can barely stand the wait!

I have two trays of seedlings that I started about two weeks ago and have begun another round of kale, broccoli and Brussels sprouts in three more trays.

My set up is not elaborate; it basically consists of a kit that includes a plastic dome that fits over a seed tray and pan.

You can craft your own using shallow containers (or a shallow flat with drainage holes, like you would get if you bought a flat of pansies), fill the flat with sterile growing medium like a 50-50 mix of vermiculite and peat moss, and then top it off with some clear plastic. Of course, you need to plant some seed at some point.

Moisten your germinating mix in a bucket before filling your flat; then take a pencil and make several shallow furrows in the mix; drop your seeds in (check planting depth on the seed packet, some seeds need light to germinate so you do not want to cover them with your germinating mixture); gently moisten again with your spray bottle and cover with a plastic hood or homemade tent (if you prefer the homemade version use pop sickle sticks to support your tent). Plug in your heated mat if included, germination really does benefit from some bottom warmth.

Jeneen Wiche

The plastic covering increases the relative humidity and moderates the soil moisture as the seeds germinate. Open the tent daily to see if more moisture is needed, mist accordingly using your spray bottle. Consistency is necessary for both moisture and warmth.

Seeds need varying degrees of warmth to germinate so for cool season crops you may not need any more heat than what a sunny window or some grow lights will provide. Summer crops will benefit from an additional source like a heating mat.

You don't want to cook your seeds, just keep them on the warm side. It is not ideal to put them by a heat register or refrigerator because this is an inconsistent source of warmth and dries the seedlings out.

If your tray is in a bright window you will need to rotate the tray daily once the seedling emerge; grow lights overhead are ideal because the seedlings grow stout and straight.

Once your seedlings emerge remove the covering and begin to water the tray from the bottom to maintain even moisture (not soggy). Once the second set of true leaves form (those that are the shape that you associate with the plant) your adolescent seedlings are ready to be transplanted into their own pot containing transplant mix; you can use small pots left over from store-bought plants.

Once they are transplanted return them to their light source (if they are in a window give them a quarter turn every day so they grow straight).

Continue to water your transplants from the bottom when needed, adding some diluted fish emulsion fertilizer once a week.

When conditions are right for your particular plant (check the seed package for details) acclimate them to the outdoors before planting them in the garden. Put them outside in the shade, first, gradually moving them into the sunlight; they will be ready to plant in the garden in about a week.

Report shows continued decrease in beef cow numbers

By GARY CARTER, Co. EXT. AGENT

Late January brought USDA's Cattle Inventory report, which provided an estimate of cattle numbers across the US. As expected, beef herd liquidation continued during 2011, despite the stronger fall markets. The severe drought that plagued much of the southern plains pushed many cows to slaughter and forced many ranchers to reduce their herd size. Estimated beef cow numbers fell by three percent, which is the largest single year decrease in many years.

One number that has gotten some attention in the press was a one percent increase in the number of heifers held for beef replacements. However, it is important to note that the increase in heifer development amounted to 73,000 heifers, while the three percent decrease in beef cow numbers was a drop of nearly one million cows. So, while the increase in heifer retention is significant, in my opinion it is premature to suggest that expansion is "underway" as some have said.

The implications are clear; the 2011 calf crop will likely be around three percent smaller. Holding everything else constant, this is likely worth $5-$8 per cwt in price. Also, it's important to remember that we are still at least a couple years away from seeing larger feeder cattle supplies, as the only way to expand would be to hold back heifers in the short term. If expansion were to begin during 2012, larger calf crops wouldn't be seen until 2014. So, while there are questions on the demand side, it is hard to imagine the supply side looking any more positive over the next couple of years.

Kentucky cattle inventory showed a continued decline in beef cow numbers as well, despite the higher prices and more favorable weather. Competition for pasture and hay ground for row crop production was likely a major factor behind the decline. Kentucky beef cow numbers were estimated to be down by 28,000 (-three percent). USDA's estimates of Kentucky's beef cow numbers have decreased by more than 200,000 cows since January of 2007. Also of note was another decrease in heifers held for beef cow replacement in the state, suggesting that Kentucky beef cow numbers are not likely to increase during 2012.

ADAM H. EDELEN
AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Steven L. Beshear, Governor
Lori H. Flanery, Secretary
Finance and Administration Cabinet
Honorable Alex Barnett, Harrison County Judge/Executive
Honorable Bruce Hampton, Harrison County Sheriff
Members of the Harrison County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report

We have audited the Harrison County Sheriff's Settlement - 2010 Taxes for the period April 16, 2010 through April 15, 2011. This tax settlement is the responsibility of the Harrison County Sheriff. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for Sheriff's Tax Settlements issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

As described in Note 1, the Sheriff's office prepares the financial statement in accordance with the modified cash basis, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. In our opinion, the accompanying financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the Harrison County Sheriff's taxes charged, credited, and paid for the period April 16, 2010 through April 15, 2011, in conformity with the modified cash basis of accounting.

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated December 12, 2011 on our consideration of the Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards and should be considered in assessing the results of our audit.

Respectfully submitted,

Adam H. Edelen
